The massive MAC scoreboard, donated by the Deseret News, dwarfs a workman. Officials hope that the scoreboard and two others at floor level will be functioning by tomorrow's Activities Center opening.

Three months to completion

MAC at loose ends

With the tip-off only 36 hours away, the Marriott Activities Center crews are racing the clock to finish the bare essentials of the massive structure.

Sam Brewster, Director of the BYU Physical Plant, yesterday cautioned ticket-holders to expect something less than a complete arena for tomorrow's season opener, the Cougar Classic.

"It will be at least three months until it is completely ready and six months until the bugs are worked out," said Brewster.

The Cougars, who will face Kansas State Friday night, were only yesterday given the unexpected chance to get the feel of the new floor. However the team may have to wait to try out new dressing rooms. "We're uncertain as to whether they will be ready or not," said Brewster.

OUTSIDE lighting also is not complete, along with a host of other technical details. Permanent speakers will not be installed in the 22,000 seat arena for 30 to 40 days. A speaker system from Cougar Stadium will substitute Friday and Saturday.

Lighting in the parking lots is not yet complete, necessitating the use of flashlights by policemen and attendants. Brewster urged drivers to be extremely cautious. Hand rail safety devices are not yet totally installed inside and around the outside of the MAC. Temporary measures will be taken to replace the missing parts.

The unfinished snow-melting network beneath sidewalks will keep workmen busy with salt and shovels in the event of a storm.

The heating system, still in the completion stages, will be operated manually during the first few games. Brewster indicated that the system must be tested over a period of months before it can operate adequately.

One bright note amid the construction clutter will cheer basketball fans. Portable baskets were installed yesterday, and the game will go on.

Deck the doors, trees and windows

The First Annual Tree Decorating, Door Decorating and Window Painting contest will deck the Wilkinson Center throughout the Christmas season, according to Walt Marlowe, vice president of Social Activities.

Forms for entry into any of the three contests are now available on the Fourth Floor ELWC. All entries must be ready by Dec. 7 for judging on Dec. 9.

Trees for the decorating contest will be placed around the Reception Center, down the hallway past the information desk, past the east lounge, through the Ballroom and to the elevators.

Entrants must supply their own tree, under eight feet tall. The contest is open to clubs, organizations, wards and ward families. Trees will be judged on originality, beauty, creativity, humor, lighting, color scheme and international style.

THE BEST ward entry will receive 200 preferred seating tickets for a January 14 contest. Clubs will receive 50 tickets and ward family winners will receive 20. A $25 cash prize may be substituted.

All doors are open for decoration, including restrooms. The choice of a door is given on a first-come-first-served basis.

There will be one prize for this section of the contest—$25 in cash.

All windows can be used for painting with washable materials. Students are advised to enter early in order to obtain the largest and most prominent positions. A cash prize of $25 is offered to the winner.

After Dec. 9, all decorations will be kept on display until the Christmas season is over.

The Social Office is sponsoring the activity "to add to the Christmas spirit of the campus", said Marlowe.

Playwright at forum today

Famous American playwright, founder and author Robert L. Lee returns to BYU today to discuss "Plays, Players and Playwrights" in a forum.

No relation to the general for whom he is named, Lee was the most popular forum speaker of 1966. Lee collaborated with Jerome Lawrence to write some of the most frequently produced plays in America including "Inherit the Wind", "Auntie Mame" and "Dear World". His newest play, "The Incomparable Max", opened this fall on Broadway.

Last year his play, "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail", was chosen as the production of the American Playwrights Theatre and was produced in more than a hundred university and community theatres.

In addition to his plays, Lee has written a noted book on night-broadcasting, "Television the Revolution", as well as a compilation of lectures he has delivered entitled "Writing Without Rules".

With his co-author, Lawrence, Lee is one of the Founders of the world's largest network, the Armed Forces Radio and Television Service.

Nooks and crannies in the Marriott Activities Center provide a hasty storage spot for construction materials.

Basketball fans arriving at the MAC tomorrow may find a few strange odds and ends cluttering the unfinished structure.

Take Stock

Our cagey cougar Cosmo moved in for a "killing" when he purchased ten shares of BYU Library Stock. The stocks have no real value, but they "entitle the holder to enjoy the gratitude of those who will receive educational opportunities and academic benefits from the said donation".

Sub for Santa

Wards asked for seasonal aid

A challenge has been extended to each BYU ward to "Sub for Santa" one family this Christmas season.

The challenge came from the ASBYU Student Community Service Office, under the direction of Vice President Robert Jones.

"All families have been carefully screened by the Utah State Welfare Dept.," Jones said. "When a ward accepts a family to help with this project they should check with the Welfare Dept. and find out the specific needs of the family," he added.

MAC RAISOR, bishop of the BYU 84th Ward, commented that "the spirit of doing things for others, created in the 'Sub for Santa' project, should extend throughout the year."

"Helping with transportation, shoveling walks, or sending greeting cards" are a few of the ways of remembering families throughout the year, Raiser continued.

He added that his ward has "created so many lasting friendships" with families they have helped through the Sub for Santa project, and some students "still enjoy doing things for the families."

"The success of the project is not because of the gifts, but because of all the kindnesses," Raiser said.

Vicki Laney, chairman of the project, said she "felt concerned" because a few bishops had related bad experiences received in the past through the project.

ALTHOUGH they've had bad experiences, we hope this will be an incentive for them this year to try harder," she said.

Jones added that "presents should not be dumped on a family Christmas eve. The Sub for Santa project should be seasonal in helping a family that not only needs financial help but spiritual and friendship help," he said.

Jones further commented that the project was not just to help the needy, but also to let students "feel the true Christmas spirit of giving, because they give their ideas and time to a worthwhile cause."

"I can't think of a better way to build spirit and unity in a ward," Jones said.

GI's flown home for Christmas

Eight GIs from Olathe, Kansas serving in Vietnam will be flown home for Christmas with money raised by the town.

The "Home for Christmas Committee" announced it has raised the $6,000 necessary to pay for round trip air fares of the local servicemen.

Butz lobbies own cause

Dr. Earl L. Butz, a day away from the Senate showdown on his nomination to be Secretary of Agriculture, lobbied his own cause yesterday among the handful of senators whose votes could mean the difference between victory and defeat.

Administrative forces claimed that with Butz's help they now had over 50 votes in the 100-member Senate for President Nixon's controversial nominee, to confirm him.

Butz once was a key advisor to much-criticized Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson in the Eisenhower administration.

"Conspiracies and intrigues"

Communist China said yesterday some high-level leaders were involved in "conspiracies and intrigues" against Chairman Mao Tse-tung in attempts to seize power.

The charge was made in a major policy editorial published in the newspaper of the Communist Party. The editorial also charged that some of the alleged plotters were engaged in "illicit relations with foreign countries." It did not elaborate.

It seems to be the most open and direct attack yet against Defense Minister Lin Biao and other military leaders, apparently purged during the past three months.

Youngest Selective Service board member

Michael A. Simmons, an 18-year-old with a 1-Y draft deferment, was sworn in as perhaps the nation's youngest local Selective Service board member.

Simmons graduated from high school last year. He wanted to join the Air Force, but he was disqualified because of a football injury.

The young board member supports Nixon's policy in Vietnam, and said he would not be swayed when his former classmates appealed to the draft board.

"When they come before the board," he said, "they aren't my friends."

China trip—no dramatic results

President Nixon's one week trip to China will feature a series of free-wheeling talks with Communist leaders, with no set list of topics and the minimum aim of establishing some basic communication.

Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's advisor, said there were no expectations the visit would produce dramatic results, such as U.S. recognition for the Peking government.

Dollar devaluation

"The U.S. has offered in theory to devalue the dollar by more than 5 per cent in a move to realign major Western currencies," West German Finance Minister Karl Schiller said yesterday.

Schiller said other member countries of the Group of Ten, the non-Communist world's wealthiest nations, were embarrassed by the proposal and unable to give any prompt official response.

The other members are to revalue their currencies upwards or at least stay put.

Campaign financing still riding

House-Senate tax conferees will keep the controversial presidential election campaign financing plan in the tax relief bill, despite President Nixon's veto.

The plan, attached to the tax relief bill by the Senate, would provide up to $20.4 million to the major parties, if they accept it, for the 1972 presidential race.

Republicans have said they will not accept the money but will continue to raise funds privately.

The Democrats, still $9 million in the red from their 1968 presidential effort, need the money. The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. has told the Democratic party to forget about telephones for its 1972 convention unless the party takes care of its old bill of $1.5 million for the 1968 convention in Chicago.

Pay raise granted

Nixon's economic power guaranteed until 1973

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate approved legislation yesterday extending President Nixon's unprecendented peacetime powers to control the economy until May 1, 1973, and granting over reluctant White House approval retroactive payment of wage increases lost during the freeze.

The measure also would grant a $1 billion pay raise for 3.1 million civilian and military employees of the government on Jan. 1-six months earlier than Nixon had wanted.

Whether to give workers the $2 billion to $6 billion in back pay hikes they were denied during the freeze under previously negotiated contracts has been a bone of contention for three months between Nixon and intransigent A.F.E. CIO President George Meany. The Senate bill, like similar legislation under consideration in the House, would settle the dispute in Meany's favor.

BEFORE FINAL passage, the Senate tacked onto the bill by a 50-36 vote over White House opposition a provision exempting the prices charged and the wages paid by the newspaper, news service, book, magazine and radio, and television industries.

Supporters said the press exemption from economic controls was needed to ward off the possibility of "economic censorship" against unfriendly newspapers or broadcasters by the government. The exception was proposed by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

A FEW DEMOCRATS warned that Congress would come to regret giving Nixon such vast controls over the economy—equal to those which existed only in World War II and the Korean War. Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., who voted no: "I have a strange and ugly feeling we will have these controls the rest to my life. I pray to God I am wrong."

He said his economic background warned him that Nixon's program would not succeed. "Only a free market can regulate wages and prices and rents," he said.

Campaign reforms in sight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With strong bipartisan support, the House has approved legislation that supports hope will become the first major campaign reform law in 46 years. The bill sharply curtails election advertising by presidential and congressional candidates.

The House turned back an attempt to insert in the measure a provision to limit individual contributions to federal campaigns. Republicans had warned this clause would inspire a presidential veto.

The equal time provision requires broadcasters to give the same amount of air time to all candidates seeking the same office. The White House has warned that the President would veto a bill in which repeal applied only to presidential candidates.

The House voted to limit spending by all federal candidates to ten cents per voter or $50,000, whichever is higher. This includes spending for communications media, billboards and computerized mailings of more than 200 letters.

Tension grows around Israel

A military spokesman in Tel Aviv said Israeli troops killed 58 Arab guerrillas who tried to shoot their way out of an underground bunker in a refugee camp in the occupied Gaza strip yesterday. It brought to 11 the total of Arab guerrillas slain in clashes in the strip in the past 48 hours.

In Amman, King Hussein told parliament, that Jordan must mobilize all its resources to fight against Israel until occupied Arab territory is returned.

Heavy security precautions were in effect following reports that the four accused assassins of Premier Wafael Tel in Cairo Sunday also planned to kill the king and his family.

Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir, in Washington for talks today with President Nixon and Secretary of State William P. Rogers, told newsmen on her arrival Tuesday she is concerned there may be fighting but does not fear the outcome if shooting should start.

The U.N. General Assembly in New York is scheduled to open debate on the Middle East today. In a report yesterday to the assembly and the Security Council, U.N. Secretary General Thant urged "appropriate organs" of the world body to take steps to enable his Middle East peace envoy Gunnar V. Jarring to resume his mission. Jarring's efforts to find a peaceful solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict was suspended last March.

Soviets scoop Mars

MOSCOW (UPI) — The government newspaper Izvestia said yesterday that Soviet scientists have indicated Mars 2 and Mars 3 were supposed to scoop up soil from the Martian surface and study it for life forms.

In an article published in connection with the probe, which scored a first Tuesday by depositing a Soviet hammer and sickle flag on the dust-blown red planet, quoted scientists at the round table discussion on the probe as saying:

"If there are any microorganisms in the soil, they may start to propagate and the instruments will register a certain dynamic picture of changes in the physical and chemical conditions in the capsule chamber as a result of the life."

Izvestia said "a certain nutrient medium" would be taken to the surface in a descending capsule and "put into the Martian soil" for the experiment.

The scientists did not elaborate on what sort of culture medium would be used, but they said, "It cannot be ruled out that the Martians would not like the earth food, and that they would not reveal their presence in these experiments."

Vanatutude

Editor:
Last Tuesday's Vanatutude was disgusting. Is the Daily Universe so hard up for news that they have to run a two page story on its staff? Maybe, but isn't anything going on, but I think filling the pages of the paper with a story about the staff is either a sign of laziness, lack of creativity, or a great big ego.

Congratulations on the good work you have done, but I hope you won't publish any more journalistic bummers like that last Vanatutude.

Moralizing the immoral

Editor:
I would like to respond to Mark Skovsen's opinion in Is Nothing Sacred? (Daily Universe Nov. 30) on the commercialization of Christmas. Apparently Mark thinks that the profit motive, i.e., the spirit to compete in order to achieve, is inferior to "the true Christmas spirit". In other words, Mark's spirit is profane, the spirit of giving, or unity, or selflessness is not.

"These days business seems to have no sense about it except to maximize its profits." An elementary lesson in economy should give Mark the understanding that a business does not succeed by not profiting. It becomes bankrupt. An elementary lesson in psychology should educate the fact that man is a being that must produce and achieve. If he doesn't he dies.

Like so many other seemingly harmless religious bromides, "the true Christmas spirit" is one that gives evidence of a dangerous attempt to moralize the immoral. Dangerous in the sense that whenever achievement and trade ("mere commercialism") are denounced in favor of selflessness and the unearned ("the true Christmas spirit"), then men's means of survival, and therefore his life, is threatened. When this happens, nothing can be sacred.

Ticket policy

Editor:
We, the undersigned, strongly suggest the Athletic VP or whoever is in charge of the ticket policy reconsider their position on the ticket distribution. First of all, it is obvious that these "officials" have never attended the brawkely West Annex love-ins, rock festivals, Indian pow-wows, and football games. In addition the current policy has at least one major weakness, last year with a student ticket allotment of 3500 the West Annex was packed almost every night before a game by midnight. This year they tell us the allotment is 10,000. Unless they've built a new addition onto the West Annex it seems highly unlikely that such a policy will be practical. We would, however, like to point out some of the current policy's advantages:

1. It brings young couples together. After all how often can a couple spend the night together at no cost and still have a legitimate excuse.

2. It provides an excellent opportunity for rock enthusiasts to "turn on" a capacity crowd for an entire evening with the latest rock music.

3. Then there's the ones in a life-size chaise to hear the pounding of ancient Indian drums.

4. Let's not forget the opportunity to witness a live football game—in which you can participate in whether you want to or not.

5. Last of all such an arrangement provides experience for authority deprived individuals in use of the megaphone and arrangement of people in numerous entertaining formations. We realize arguments can continue both for and against any policy, but we feel the present policy is by far the most inadequate of those suggested previously, for it is a gross misuse of time. We would suggest that the plan with the most advantages is the advanced multiple distribution of tickets. This policy would allow individuals to obtain tickets at their convenience. Since there are a relatively large number of good seats available, there should be less concern over getting to see the game. This should reduce the distribution centers of excessive crowding and long lines.

In conclusion, even though we feel the multiple distribution center the best alternative any other concrete plan should be considered.

Uncola

Editor:

Last week I asked McDonald's why they didn't serve the Uncola. "Well," replied the worker, "a few ask for it, but in general, there isn't a big demand for it."

"Look, stupid," I countered, "Isn't that simply because after reading the sign that lists drinks offered, they don't ask for something that isn't offered. And wouldn't people ask for the Uncola if it were listed?"

I guess I was too fast for him. He shook his head, and went to the next customer.

Naughty, naughty

Editor:

Naughty, naughty Mr. Murphy. Surely we can't forget the one scripture that applies to the ASBYU athletic office and its ticket policy.

"We have learned by sad experience that it is the nature and disposition of almost all men, as soon as they get a little authority, as they suppose, they will immediately begin to exercise unrighteous dominion." D&C 121:29

Good grief, more tickets

Editor:

In agreement with the editorial concerning ticket distribution on November 29, we feel that a central ticket office would alleviate the headaches, hardships, and heartbreaks caused by the present inefficient system of dispersing tickets.

A central office that started giving out tickets a week in advance would eliminate the headache of memorizing different ticket office locations; do away with the physical hardship and mental anguish of waiting in the ever present lines; and quell the heartbreak of not getting the tickets after you've made that big date.

Handcuffed and jailed, county officials participated Tuesday in a "confinement" exercise to spearhead the campaign for a judicial security complex.

Officials 'jailed' to start project

By KATHY JENKINS

Asst. Campus Editor

Sixty county officials were frisked, handcuffed, and sentenced to confinement Tuesday night in one of the biggest roundups in Utah County.

The officials, including mayors, commissioners, and board members, were members of a spearhead committee meeting Tuesday to discuss the need for a new judicial and security complex for the county. The arrests occurred at 6 p.m. when representatives from Herb McLean Assoc. in Provo arrived at the meeting to provide the officials with an experience in "confinement."

After a short period of confinement, officials returned to the Utah City and County Building to discuss the details of the proposed "Project 239," adding to the discussion the new insight gained at the jail.

The project gained its name from an estimated cost of the new structure. County officials determined that the new judicial security complex would cost each resident approximately $2.39 per year over a 20-year period, a cost that was termed as "quite a bargain."

According to Herb McLean, head of Herb McLean Assoc., the project was termed as an "immediate and pressing" need for the county. The complex would contain both a new jail and new court facilities.

In stressing the need for improved jail facilities, McLean said that the present jail "lacks security, is horribly crowded, and is inadequate in terms of equipment."

"The present county jail is nothing more than a pen," he said. "It has nothing in terms of rehabilitation equipment, and is over two miles from the nearest court facility. This in itself presents an obvious security problem," McLean added.

In reference to the present court facilities, McLean said that "court records are scattered in six rooms on three different floors and the three court clerks are exceptionally cramped in a tiny room with their working records two floors away."

Welty snares free trip home

Roy Welty, grand prize winner in the Travel Fun '72 drawing for a free round trip plane ticket home, is a graduate student majoring in drama.

The ticket will be used for he and his wife and child to visit his parents who live in San Jose, Calif. He and his wife were planning on a Christmas visit to San Jose but would have had to draw from their savings, according to Welty.

He told his wife before he left on the day of the drawing that he would be home by 1 p.m. In answer to his wife's questioning of why he couldn't be home at the usual time he said, "I've got to wait and pick up our airplane ticket before I come home."

BYU's rugby team returns to Tucson for the Desert Classic.

Ruggers defend Desert Classic title

By NEVA MATHEWS

BYU rugby reputation rides heavy this weekend as the team left yesterday for Arizona to defend its silver cup championship of the Desert Cup Classic.

Last year the Cougars won big in Tucson. Coach Glenn Seggar divided the squad into two teams and both teams came out on top in the 12-team competition.

So, it was BYU II against BYU I in the Tucson play-off; the BYU II team won, and the Cats brought home the silver cup. (It's a revolving trophy; win it thrice at Tucson and keep it UCLA, nationally ranked number 1, had it in 1969 but couldn't get there in 1970 to defend the cup, so bowed it over to BYU.

With just 12 returning ruggers, this year's team is a new bulkclub. But, the 1971 Cougar ruggers have been beating a winner's road. The team smashed Colorado at Aspen early in the season, swept over some local teams, and two weeks ago trounced the San Diego rugby team before a capacity crowd in Balboa Stadium.

A special victory to send the team to Arizona was a 22-8 win over the College Old Boys.

Cougar guardline: up for grabs

By CHUCK HUNGERFORD

When the Cougar cagers make their inter-collegiate debut in the Marriott Activities Center this weekend, a couple of factors will be manifested which will go a long way in determining the efficiency of the BYU basketball machine this season.

Two vital cogs are missing from last year's WAC championship squad. Steve Kelly and his 17 point per game scoring average, and defensive yeoman Jim Miller have been lost to graduation. That makes two holes which must be plugged.

INDICATIONS from the Frosh-Varsity tilt that Jay Bunker will aptly fill Kelly's slot, teaming with colorful Kres Conic and tough Phil Tollestrup to provide a potent scoring punch on the front line.

The backcourt combination, however, the backbone of any basketball team, is still a question mark.

Miller's absence leaves a bigger void than most people suspect," cautions assistant coach Pete Witbeck. "Not only did he display possibly the best defense ever seen at BYU, Jim was our leader. He steadied the guys, set up plays and even led the Cougars in rebounding three times last year," praised Witbeck.

Does that mean this season's squad will be without a real leader? "Not at all," says the other half of the successful assistant coaching duo, defensive specialist Glenn Potter, "Bernie Fryer has all the qualifications to step into Miller's shoes in that respect."

Fryer, a 6-3, 185 lb. product of Port Angeles, Washington has it all. A tremendous competitor as well as a natural athlete, Bernie has earned the respect of his teammates and should be a big factor in leading the Cougars to a successful season.

THE ADDED responsibilities that come hand-in-hand with his new position as "quarterback" may curtail some of Fryer's scoring activities, (Bernie led the club in scoring last year with a 19.2 average) and the slack will have to be taken up elsewhere.

Coaches Witbeck and Potter agree that the guard who emerges as Fryer's counterpart will probably be more offensively inclined than was Miller. Abo, more points are expected from Conic—thus the shift in offense.

AND SO the question mark presents itself. Who will occupy that other guard spot?

"We honestly can't say at this time," confesses Coach Potter. "We've got four kids contending for the other position. Just because one starts one game does not necessarily mean he'll start the next. It all depends on who comes along the fastest," continued Potter. "We're going to have to do some experimenting during the month of December to find out which combination works best."

Vying for the spot opposite Fryer are three Sophomores and a Junior.

The Junior, Dave Bailey, 6-1, 170 lbs, got the starting nod in the Frosh-Varsity game and may well duplicate the honor Friday. Dave, a Moroni, Utah native was an all-state selection at North Sanpete High School. According to coach Witbeck, "Dave is very quick and does a good job on defense. He also has a year's experience on the other guard hopefuls, which is important."

Doug Richards, brother of football's Golden, is probably the steadiest of the young playmakers. At 6-3, 185, Richards as the number two scorer on last year's successful Freshman team. He is a good outside shooter and as he gains poise Doug should become a good one.

EXPECTED to see plenty of action this season is Belmont

Guards . . .

(Bill) Anderson who was twice all-state for Skyline High School in Salt Lake City before leading the Kittens in scoring last year with a 17.7 average. Coach Potter is hopeful about Anderson, "Bill has as much potential as any guard we've had at BYU." "He's probably the best of the four in a one-on-one scoring situation," agreed Witbeck. Consensus is that Anderson needs work on defense and, of course, experience.

The other contender for the empty guard spot is 6-3, 170 lb. Grig Clawson, a streak shooter who, when he's hot, can break up a ballgame, as he did several times as a member of the Frosh unit last year. Clawson, like Richards, with whom he was a high school teammate at Granite High in Salt Lake City, scores well from outside.

No doubt that it—whoever garners the starting assignment must wade through some very tough competition. But then that's what a varsity basketball team is all about.

"Roadrunner is a goner this time."

On drug abuse

Utah parents buy 'quick and simple solutions'

By DALE VAN ATTA
Campus Editor
(Third of a series)

Like the plebians that brought up all of Dr. Schlock's cure-all snake oil, most Utah parents faced with drugs in the home jump at a quick and simple solution that will cut the cancerous element of their community leaving no stains behind.

According to the Utah Division of Alcoholism and Drugs, this grasping at anything to solve the problem is Phase V of the standard Utah community reaction to capsaled children.

THE FIRST STEPS included apathy and denial of the problem, then growing concern for it until direct confrontation forced the issue. After this confrontation, alarm, shock and panic set in and people try to pin the blame on someone or some institution.

One normal solution to the problem is thought to be in "killing the pusher." In one Utah community, a pusher was nearly strung up by citizens before the action was stopped.

With another method, said Dr. David Davies (who with Dr. Bruce Beck came up with the analysis), officials seek to isolate and cut out the drug element by enforcing dress codes in school, feeling that long hair and drugs are blood brothers.

"Scare tactics" are usually employed to try to dissuade pill-users including reports of chromosomal damage which are backed by experiments usually conducted on animals by scientists with pre-conceived biases, according to Dr. Davies. "But the kids just don't scare," he said.

THE DIVISION discouraged the panel of ex-addicts or ex-users who visit campuses talking about the experiences they had with drugs. He claimed that these panels are a subtle seduction toward the "good old days" when they were on the pills, having a good time, acting "cool," and showing that they were so much better for the experience now that they'd been through it. "Everybody wants to be an ex-user then," added Davies.

One poor way out, according to the Division, has been commercialized solutions which appear to be only out to make money off the problem. These include drug posters, stamps, films, pamphlets, books and records—notably the Utah hit disc featuring Art Linkletter reading a letter to his drugged-out daughter "wherever she may be."

Youth themselves latch on to solutions not so long-lasting, said Davies. Legalizing drugs so that they can be "out of the hands of the underworld," astrological cults, popular magic, communes, love, peace, and back-to-Jesus movements, are all examples of youth's suggested panaceas.

COMMON SENSE solutions of the "adult establishment" encourage users to get back to the 'old values,' usually enforced by sending their son from California to a farm in the country of Utah.

PHASE VI, the treatment focus, runs up against the 'we have all we can handle' type reaction, said Dr. Beck. Also included is the fatalistic attitude putting, "We've been treating drug abuse for years and haven't found any solution," he added.

The Daily Universe will analyze the remaining attitudes of Phase VI and prevention of the problem, or Phase VII, tomorrow.

Pillow concert dance features "Stampeders" December 10

Play tickets in demand

What is the line for? Is there a football game or something? What do you mean you haven't any tickets left? I've been waiting in line for 45 minutes!

Similar cries echoed across the lobby of the HFAC in front of the drama ticket office as massive lines besieged the office in search of tickets for the two current BYU productions "Dance on a Country Grave" and "American II", both scheduled to open this week.

Over 1,000 tickets for faculty and students were distributed yesterday for the original musical "Dance on a Country Grave". All Evening performances with the exception of the new Dec. 18 performance are sold out. Tickets for the two Tuesday matinees scheduled for December 7 and 14 are still available. All matinees start at 1 p.m.

Tickets are still available for all performances of "American II", "The Devil and Daniel Webster" and "Palman Car Hsiawatha" will be presented in the Nelke Experimental Theater starting tonight at 8 p.m.

I almost told you once just how I felt

But I was shy

And you were distant and afraid

And so was I.

And so we wait and count this interval apart.

But I remember you. . .

You warmed my heart.

Musical groups to sing in a Songfest-go-round

Music varying from religious numbers to soft rock will be presented tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the HFAAC de Jong Church Hall, during BYU's 1971 "Songfest."

Displaying original compositions, BYU's Oratorio Choir, a Capella Choir, Program Bureau, Chamber Choir, Angel Flight, and 26th, 81st, 46th, and 45th wards will compete in the annual fest.

The 1971 "Songfest" is themed "Carousol of Song," and features all original songs performed by groups who have advanced from semi-final competition. The eleven performing groups were selected after application through the ASBYU Culture Office, tryouts before a judging panel and the semi-final contest featuring 22 groups.

Food, films to enhance Vivaldi

Featuring films, food, and recitation in addition to music, the BYU Chamber Orchestra, under the direction of Dr. David Dalton, will perform "The Seasons", four descriptive concerti by Antonio Vivaldi tonight at 8 and 9:30 p.m. in the Madson Recital Hall, HFAAC.

Each of the two performances will begin with the showing of a film on Vivaldi and the Baroque era.

Following the film the orchestra will present the musical pieces together with the four sonnets which inspired them. These sonnets will be read first in Italian by Philip Sparian, then an English translation by Max Golightly.

Faculty quartet re-named

Is it the Happy Valley Wire Choir? The Gaudian Band? No, but it might have been.

Instead, it's the Desert String Quartet, just re-named. The group, formerly called the BYU Faculty String Quartet, found its name cumbersome and sponsored a contest to choose a new name which would be succinct, unique and reflective of LDS heritage.

Dr. Merrill Bradshaw, composer in residence at BYU, was the winner with the first entry of the name Desert String Quartet.

The quartet includes violinists Percy Kalt and Barbara Williams, cellist David Dalton and Robert Ashby, violist.

Registration tags needed

Bikes improperly parked and those without registration tags can be impounded, according to Security Chief Sven C. Nielsen.

He called the bicycle registration "cheap insurance" aiding officers to quickly identify the owner if the bike is found after being stolen.

The registration costs one dollar and is permanent—needs only to be renewed when the bike changes owners.

Along with the tag number, the bike serial number and a description are filed with Security when the bike is registered.

According to Capt. Nielsen, Security periodically sweeps the campus and picks up bikes parked outside of racks or which don't have registration tags.

Capt. Nielsen also reported that since the beginning of school, when there was a shortage of bicycle racks on campus, 30 more racks have been set up.

Jumpers scramble

Students from BYU combined with students from Arizona over the Thanksgiving weekend to participate in the Annual Arizona Skydiving Scrambles in Coolidge, Ariz.

According to Craig Homer, publicity manager of the BYU Sport Parachute Club, members of the club made a total of 65 jumps, with each club member making at least five jumps.

The jumps were made from a height of 1300-3000 feet, and ranged from simple student jumps to a seven-man star jump formed by both BYU and Arizona jumpers.

Gov. Rampton guest speaker for lecture

Governor Calvin Rampton will be on campus Friday as the guest of the Political Science Dept. Rampton will speak at 11 a.m. in 184 JKB, according to Earl Fry, graduate student in political science and a coordinator of the trip.

The occasion is a political science lecture series, a once-a-week class featuring prominent politicians as guest speakers. According to Fry, Senator Frank Moss and Congressman Gunn McKay have already appeared at the lectures since this year, and Senator Wallace Bennett and Congressman Sherman Lloyd are scheduled to speak next semester.

No topic has been assigned to Governor Rampton, but Fry indicated that "he will probably address himself to the budget, since that's what he's working on right now."
